

FACULTY
SANTA CLARA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW
2013 SUMMER ABROAD PROGRAM
OXFORD

Ana Aliverti is the Oxford-Howard League Post-doctoral Fellow at the Centre for Criminology. She has recently completed her DPhil in Law at Oxford, focusing upon the role of criminal law in the policing of immigration. Before starting her doctoral studies, she completed the MSc in Criminology and Criminal Justice at the University of Oxford in 2008 with Distinction and was awarded the Proxime Accessit to the Roger Hood Prize. She also holds an MA in Sociology of Law (Magna Cum Laude, IISL) and a BA in Law (Honours, University of Buenos Aires).

Roderick Bagshaw is fellow and tutor in law at Magdalen College and a Lecturer in the Faculty of Law. He teaches courses in Administrative Law, Constitutional Law, Tort Law, and Evidence. He was formerly on the Executive Committee of the Society of Legal Scholars and the Convenor of the Society's Tort Law Subject Section. He is the co-author of McBride and Bagshaw, Tort Law (3rd ed 2008), and a contributor to Phipson on Evidence and Butterworths Common Law Series: Tort.

Liz Fisher is a Reader in Environmental Law at Corpus Christi College of Oxford University and a lecturer in the faculty of law. She received her B.A. and L.L.B. from the University of New South Wales and her D Phil from Oxford University. Her scholarly pursuits are in the areas of environmental law, risk regulation, and administrative law. Her 2007 book, Risk Regulation and Administrative Constitutionalism, won the SLS Peter Birks Prize for Outstanding Legal Scholarship. She won an Oxford University Teaching Award in 2009 and was shortlisted for OUP National Law Teacher of the Year Award 2011. She also sits on the Editorial Board of the Journal of Environmental Law and the Editorial Committee of the Modern Law Review (the latter as co-editor of the Legislation Section).

Bettina Lange joined the Law Faculty and Wolfson College in July 2007, having previously worked in the law departments of Aberystwyth and Keele University, UK. She trained in law and sociology at Warwick University, UK and before that studied for two years law at the Justus-Liebig Universität, Giessen, Germany. Her research examines legal regulation from a socio-legal perspective. She was a Jean-Monnet Fellow at the European University Institute, Florence, Italy from September 2004 to January 2005. She has conducted consultancy for the Environment Agency in England and Wales and is a member of the Advisory Board of the Centre for Environmental Law of Landmark Chambers. Her research has been funded by the British Academy, the ESRC, the SLSA and the John-Fell Fund. She serves on the editorial board of Law and Policy, the Oxford Journal of Legal Studies, and the European Journal of Risk Regulation.

Laurence Lustgarten was for many years Professor of Law at the University of Southampton, having previously taught at Warwick Law School, Queen's University, [Kingston Ontario] and Dar-es-Salaam, Tanzania. His interests were broadly in public law and criminal justice, and he authored or co-authored books and numerous articles on national security, policing, racial discrimination, human rights, defamation and several aspects of sociology of law. He spent several years as one of the Commissioners of Police Complaints for England and Wales. He is a qualified though non-practicing Barrister. In addition to a law degree from Yale Law School, he earned a Master's in International Relations from the LSE.

Catherine MacKenzie is a Lecturer, Department of Land Economy & Department of Law, University of Cambridge, with particular interests in international law and international environmental law. Formerly a Research Fellow at the University of Oxford, she graduated from Oxford, the Inns of Court School of Law, Sydney, and the Australian National University, at which she completed her PhD in law as a Commonwealth Scholar. She is a member of the Bar of England and Wales and of the High Court of Australia and has served on the Council of the Australian National University, held fellowships at the University of Tokyo and the United Nations University, and been employed by the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank, and the United Nations. Most recently she represented the English Bar Council as a rule of law monitor with the United Nations Mission in Liberia.

Peter Mirfield is a member of the Oxford faculty of law and a Zeitlyn Fellow and Tutor in Law at Jesus College, Oxford. He received his M.A. and B.C.L. from Oxford. His teaching and research interests include constitutional law, criminal law, evidence and jurisprudence. He has also a former practicing barrister and has taught in the United States, including at Florida State and Santa Clara School of Law.

Roger Smith is a member of the Oxford faculty of law and a fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford. He received his B.A. from Cambridge, and his M.A. from both Cambridge and Oxford. He has also been a lecturer in law at Birmingham University, a Fellow of Fitzwilliam College, Cambridge, and a visiting lecturer in law at the University of Melbourne. His research and teaching interests are in the areas of Real Property, Torts, Trust, Company Law, and Taxation.

Kate West is a DPhil (PhD) student at the Centre for Criminology, Faculty of Law. Her work looks at the role of visual media in criminological theory and criminal justice practice. Before beginning her doctoral research, Kate completed the LL.B at the University of Edinburgh with First Class Honours and the MSc in Criminology and Criminal Justice (Research) at the University of Oxford with Distinction and was awarded the Routledge Criminology Prize (best performance on the MSc).