

Jud Cary
Vice President and Deputy General Counsel
CableLabs

Prior to becoming a lawyer, Mr. Cary worked as an engineer in the R&D labs of U S WEST (now CenturyLink) in the knowledge-based systems group. Lawyer jokes and geek jokes are equally applicable to Mr. Cary. After law school (Santa Clara University, cum laude), he worked as a patent attorney for the Silicon Valley-based law firm of Fenwick & West. Mr. Cary returned to Colorado and followed the legal chain of title from U S WEST, to MediaOne, to AT&T Broadband, now Comcast! After a short stint at a “.bomb” company, Mr. Cary returned to the cable industry at CableLabs. He also provides general advice and counsel on a wide range of topics including technology policy, strategy, patents, patent pools, licensing, standards setting, antitrust, content protection and content distribution technologies, and the laws and regulations governing cable operators in these areas.
